Notes on Contributors

YORICK JOSUA BERTA

is a scholar and writer based in Vienna. He is currently preparing a PhD project on non-human agencies in decaying art of the 1960s.
yorick.berta@gmail.com

LISA GIOMBINI

is currently Researcher in Aesthetics at the University of Roma Tre and Visiting Research Fellow in Philosophy at the University of Hertfordshire. She was DAAD post-doctoral fellow at Stuttgart Academy of Fine Arts (2016) and at Freie Universität Berlin (2017-2018) and a Research Grantee at University of Prešov, SK (2019). She is the author of Musical Ontology: a Guide for the Perplexed (2017) and a member of several philosophical association including the European Society of Aesthetics and the American Society of Aesthetics.
lisa.giombini@uniromatre.it

VANESSA BRASSEY

is a Ph.D. candidate at King’s College, London, where she works under the supervision of Sacha Golob and Derek Matravers, pursuing an investigation into the phenomenon of artistic expression. In addition, she contributing editor at the Centre for Philosophy and the Visual Arts, exploring the connections between philosophical theory and the artist’s practice through film and live events in collaboration with Tate Britain, Tate Modern, The National Gallery, The Photographers Gallery and The Institute of Psychoanalysis.

JEFFREY PETTS

is an independent scholar based in London. His research centres on the concepts of aesthetic experience and work and their relations to art, design, workmanship and everyday aesthetic interests. He was awarded an MPhil from the University of Sussex in 2000 and a PhD, 'Work and the Aesthetic', from the University of York in 2013. 'Aesthetic Experience and the Revelation of Value' was published in JAAC in 2000; ‘Function and Flourishing: Good Design and Aesthetic Lives’ in JAE in 2019.