NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

SHERRI IRVIN is Presidential Research Professor of Philosophy and Vice President of the American Society for Aesthetics. She is author of Immaterial: Rules in Contemporary Art (Oxford University Press, 2022) and editor of Body Aesthetics (Oxford University Press, 2016). Her current work centers on issues at the intersection of aesthetics and justice, both in art and in everyday life. sirvin@ou.edu

ANN J. CAHILL is Professor of Philosophy and Distinguished University Professor at Elon University, where she also serves as the Director of National and International Fellowships. Her research interests lie at the intersection of feminist philosophy and philosophy of the body. She is the author or co-author of three books: Sounding Bodies: Identity, Injustice, and the Voice (2021, co-authored with Christine Hamel), Overcoming Objectification: A Carnal Ethics (2011), and Rethinking Rape (2001). In addition to her book-length works, she has published over twenty-five peer reviewed journal articles and book chapters, addressing topics such as miscarriage, beautification, pedagogy, and inequality in academia. cahilla@elon.edu

IDIL ÇAKMUR is a Ph.D. Candidate at the University of Pennsylvania. She works on philosophy of mind, aesthetics, and ethics, focusing on the place for conceptual work in our moral lives.

JOSHUA BRECKA is a PhD candidate at the University of Toronto. He works primarily in epistemology on topics like group knowledge and testimony, and in AI ethics, particularly on issues involving trust and trustworthiness. Joshua also maintains active research interests in the philosophy of religion and in aesthetics, particularly questions about human beauty. j.brecka@mail.utoronto.ca

C. R. MULLER is a Senior Lecturer in Philosophy and Religious Studies at Marist University. Their research interests include pretense theory and anti-realism about fictional characters, gender- and race-bending in fiction, the role of games, play, and playfulness in helping us engage with the world and ourselves, and various questions related to puppetry. cathleen.muller@marist.edu

KAZI A S M NURUL HUDA is Associate Professor of Philosophy at the University of Dhaka, Bangladesh, and the Zuzana Simoniova Cmelikova Visiting International Scholar in Leadership and Ethics at the Jepson School of Leadership Studies, University of Richmond, USA. He received a PhD in Philosophy from the University of Oklahoma. His research focuses on questions of recognition, epistemic injustice, open-mindedness, trust, legitimacy, and responsibility at the intersection of epistemology, social and political philosophy, and ethics. He is particularly interested in how social and institutional structures shape epistemic and moral life in contemporary societies. His work also extends to leadership and applied ethics, especially in the areas of development, business, environmental, and educational ethics. He regularly contributes to news outlets as part of his engagement as a public philosopher, bringing philosophical perspectives to contemporary social, political, and ethical issues. huda@du.ac.bd

IAN HECKMAN received his PhD in Philosophy from the University of British Columbia in 2022 and has since been teaching at Coquitlam College in the Vancouver area. His research focuses on issues in the performing arts, especially dance, and has published articles in the Journal of Aesthetics and Art Criticism and the British Journal of Aesthetics. He also performs locally as an independent dancer, singer, and choreographer. iantheckman@gmail.com